5 CONSULTATION BEGINS ON THE DEVELOPMENT OF CONTROL OPTIONS FOR THE USE OF CHEMICALS OF SECURITY CONCERN

Widespread consultation has begun in a review of the use and supply of chemicals of security concern.

The Australian Government is working closely with state and territory governments and industry groups to jointly progress the review of security sensitive chemicals. This is part of the COAG Review of Hazardous Material which began in 2002.

The discussion paper identifies chemicals which may require additional control measures because of their assessed security risk. It will be necessary to consider what, if any, measures should be taken in relation to each of the identified chemicals. It is unlikely that any single regime would be necessary and appropriate for all of the identified chemicals. The control process that is ultimately implemented should be nationally consistent.

The review is at an early stage and further stakeholder consultation is anticipated during the COAG chemical review process. Anyone who might be affected by potential control measures is encouraged to examine the discussion paper and submit their views for consideration.

The discussion paper will be available for comment until 1 March 2007 and can be accessed from the Department of the Prime Minister and Cabinet's website at <http://www.pmc.gov.au>
